State approves full-time in-person learning

By Dalton Zbierski
Staff Writer

CHICOPEE – Under the direction of the state Board of Elementary and Secondary Education, Chicopee Public Schools will soon transition to full-time in-person learning. For the remainder of the school year, however, students still have the option to learn remotely.

“This is a regulatory change. This is more than just guidance,” said Superintendent

Lynn Clark during the March 17 meeting of the school committee. “This was really due to the improvements of the COVID-19 health metrics across the state, implementation of mitigation strategies and the weekly testing being up and running.”

On March 23, the number of active COVID-19 cases in Chicopee was down to 123.

DESE will require all schools to use a full-time in-person learning model for instructional hours to count towards structured learning time. The state’s instructions are legally binding; any district that doesn’t comply beginning on April 5 will have to make up structured learning hours.

In Chicopee, students in kindergarten through Grade 5 will transition to full-time, in-person learning beginning on April 5. Middle school students will return on April 28, and the high schools will follow shortly after.

Chicopee began testing its students for COVID-19 on March 22. Outside test-takers will visit Chicopee’s schools to test elementary students every other week and middle and high school students on a weekly basis.

“The difference in that is due to the transmission. As we know, as students get older, the transmission is higher than we typically see at the elementary level,” said Clark.

Flag-raising ceremony celebrates Polish heritage

CHICOPEE – Generations of Polish-Americans have been fundamental to Chicopee’s success. To honor Polish tradition, Mayor John Vieau proclaimed March 19 as Saint Joseph’s Day, and a Polish flag was raised outside of City Hall.

Also known as the Feast of Saint Joseph, the Roman Catholic feast day commemorates the life of Saint Joseph, stepfather of Jesus and husband of Mary.

Eating pastries has become synonymous with the celebration, which dates back to the seventh-century and became prominent in the United States following the arrival of thousands of Polish immigrants in the 19th century.

Cultural Council plans Earth Day cleanups

The council has also launched Spotlight on the Arts with Chicopee TV

By Dalton Zbierski

CHICOPEE – The COVID-19 pandemic has changed many people’s perception of normalcy, but the Chicopee Cultural Council continues to adapt in an effort to keep arts in the city’s spotlight.

“All throughout the pandemic, we have all looked for creative ways in which we can continue to live our lives while maintaining safety and following precautions,” said council chair Johnny Miranda. “We’ve made the necessary modifications to the new way we live our lives, but at the same time, a modification in the way we live our lives does not mean we have to stop doing the things we love.”

Next month, the council is organizing an initiative that will endeavor to clean the entire city. Separate groups will take to each of Chicopee’s five villages: Cabotville, Chicopee Falls, Willimansett, Fairview and Aldenville.

“Earth Day is in April, and we are having a city wide clean sweep,” said Miranda. “We have assigned captains for each of the Chicopee villages. Currently, people in the community are signing up and will be helping clean the area.”

Miranda noted that hu-

'You'll join this family': City plans two Civil Service Exam info. sessions

By Dalton Zbierski
Staff Writer

CHICOPEE – Excitement is growing throughout Chicopee in anticipation of the April 20 Massachusetts Police Civil Service Examination. The city's next class of law enforcement professionals is waiting at the gates, ready to capitalize on an opportunity to join the force.

To garner public interest in the prospects of joining the Chicopee Police Department, two informational sessions will be held at the Public Safety Complex on Church Street on April 10. One can register to attend at chicopeema.gov/jobs.

"You'll join this family, and that's what it is," said Mayor John Vieau. "You join this paramilitary group of professionals that focus on keeping not only themselves safe but our community, knowing that Chicopee, with the current administration, is going to give you every tool you need to keep you safe while you do your job."

Passing the Civil Service Exam is the first step that must be completed to become a police officer in the Commonwealth. The police department is collaborating with the Human Resources Department, as both parties are coordinating the April 3 career fair.

Nationally, a decline has been observed in the amount of individuals interested in joining the profession of law enforcement. Events that have transpired over the past year in the United States may have created a stigma around law enforcement.

Two informational sessions scheduled for April 10 at the Public Safety Complex on Church Street will be made available for individuals who pre-register and are interested in taking the Civil Service Exam.

Bobbi Mabb, Vieau's Communication & Special Projects Manager, noted that the Chicopee department prioritizes transparency. She urged all interested parties to reserve a spot to participate in one of the two 90-minute sessions that will occur on the morning of the April 10.

"We really want Chicopee residents to step up; we want to have a really good pool of good candidates to pull from," said Mabb. "They'll do a detailed demo of everything, from what happens behind the scenes to getting to see how you get from point A to point B and being able to have conversations with people that have actually done [the exam] and been through the process."

While the minimum age to become a Chicopee Police Officer is 21-years-old, 19 and 20-year-olds are encouraged to take the test, enter the fold and be put on a list.

"You can at least get started, take the test a few times and improve your score. Everyone knows the nerves go away after you've already seen it," said Mabb.

Vieau takes great pride in keeping Chicopee a safe place to work and live in. Even if a city has the best services, schools and technology, if it isn't safe, Vieau believes it isn't adequate.

"I often say that if you don't feel comfortable where you put your head down at night, what's the point of everything else," said Vieau.

Vieau is optimistic that Chicopee's youngest generation of residents will meet the challenge head on and consider taking the test to explore their career options. No immediate commitment is needed, but putting one foot through the door could grant access to a world of new possibilities.

The April 10 initiative will offer attendees a full-scale tour of the recently renovated Public Safety Complex, interaction with officers and training tutorials.

A Criminal Justice degree is not required to take the Civil Service Exam; all that is needed is an open mind. For residents who are unhappy with the direction of law enforcement in the United States, taking the exam is taking a step in the direction of mending the problem.

"Don't be part of the problem. Be part of the solution, and that's, ultimately, the goal here. Get involved. If you want to make Chicopee a great place to live, be a part of it. It can be small or large or whatever you think you can commit to," said Vieau.

To attend the 9 a.m. or 11 a.m. information session on April 10, one must reserve a spot by 11:59 p.m. on April 2. More information can be found at mass.gov/orgs/civil-service.

Eight Chicopee teachers receive the 2021 Excellence in Teaching Award

CHICOPEE – Even though the pandemic has upended so much, thanks to the Harold Grinspoon Charitable Foundation in partnership with the Irene E. & George A. Davis Foundation, exceptional teachers will again be honored across Pioneer Valley.

This year, Allyson Ramondetta, Jamie Morgado, Dawn Amell, Joaquin Bello, Julie Boucher, Shaina Merrick, Amy White, and Ericka Blais were selected as the 2021 Excellence in Teaching Award Winners.

They will be at a Virtual Celebration for Excellence in Teaching Award Winners on May 11. The program features the presentation of the individual awards. Winners will receive an engraved plaque and a check for $250.

In addition, seven area colleges and universities offer graduate course tuition incentives and scholarships to the winners: Elms College, Bay Path University, Mount Holyoke College, Springfield College, Western New England University, Westfield State University, and the University of Massachusetts.

Winners also receive membership at NEPM Springfield as well as three-month memberships at the Springfield Jewish Community Center, the Springfield YMCA and five regional YMCAs, and other gifts.

All 2021 winners have an exciting opportunity to apply for the selective Classroom Innovator Prize of $250 by submitting a project-based learning idea. To provide valuable information about project-based learning especially in a distance learning environment, NEPM (New England Public Media) Springfield and GBH Boston will offer a free webinar on April 1st at 7:00 pm and make available thousands of PBS Learning Media Resources. Up to 30 projects will be selected for the Classroom Innovator Prize.

The Excellence in Teaching Awards program is made possible by the Harold Grinspoon Charitable Foundation in partnership with the Irene E. & George A. Davis Foundation.

"Today more than ever, when educators throughout Western Massachusetts have risen to the challenges of the pandemic and carry an awesome responsibility," said philanthropist Harold Grinspoon. "We feel grateful to all of them and privileged to honor teachers who continuously make outstanding contributions to their schools and their students."

Other business and community support comes from Arrha Credit Union, Country Bank, Meyers Brothers Kalicka, Monson Savings Bank, and American International College.

GUEST COLUMN

Fun with houseplants

Just about a month ago I decided to re-pot a number of my "houseplants." I figured the timing was good, since before too long the plants would be responding to longer days with increased growth. They would relish new soil and more room for their roots to sprawl in the bigger pots I would provide. While I have never really felt that my outdoor "green thumb" has transferred to indoor plants, I've managed not to kill enough of them so that one morning of February vacation was spent with my hands in potting soil liberating them from a fate of being root bound in the same tired soil.

Roberta McQuaid
Columnist

One of my favorite houseplants is the Gerber daisy. Most people think of this plant as a summer annual, and it technically is here in the northeast, but frugal Yankees (i.e. Mom and I) have been keeping them alive through the winter for years now. Its pretty pastel daisy-type flowers remind me of those the prankster clowns use to squirt water in the faces of unsuspecting folks. In our house we call it the "happy plant." I had three good-sized pots of them, all with tired soil. It showed by how yellow-green the leaves were. I moistened my compost-based Coast of Maine potting soil and proceeded to pry the plants apart, giving the divisions a fresh pot and a splash of liquid fertilizer once back on the windowsill. I am happy to say I now have one flower and a few others awaiting in the crown! Success!

Three other plants typically grown as annuals were saved from winter's chill and brought indoors as an experiment. One was a lobelia plant that grew in a ceramic pot by my front door all summer. Usually lobelias peter out during the dog days, but this newer variety kept right on blooming right through the heat. For the fun of it, I cut it back in late October and put it, pot and all in my mud room. Lo and behold, it started to grow. I provided it with light, some fresh soil and said liquid fertilizer, and it is actually sporting a few blossoms right now. I am only hoping it will be happy indoors for several more weeks; thankfully lobelias are fairly cold hardy so I can probably get it outside earlier than most flowering plants.

Another annual I overwintered is heliotrope. Given to me as a gift last summer, its purple, vanilla-baby powder scented flowers provided a olfactory pick-me-up whenever needed. Admittedly, this plant struggled over the winter but with fresh soil and a brighter window it is thriving once more. The same goes for a coleus that I got from a my friend Jean a year and a half ago. I decided take cuttings of all three to increase my coffers and happily both the coleus and the lobelia have rooted. It's been tricky to keep the almost furry heliotrope leaves from wilting while awaiting roots. More research necessary there.

Late last spring I made a mixed planter with succulent type plants for my porch. I used what I had, including two tiny kalachoe plants rescued from where I don't recall. They looked so pathetic that I planted them almost in the same hole to make one decent-sized plant. But alas, in just three months of good soil and a warm porch they tripled in size and by February were full of aphids. After a soapy bath they were separated, each given their own pot. Now, one has flower buds! I have read that kalanchoes are easy to propagate. Simply take a cutting of terminal growth two to three inches long, stripping off all but the top 2 or 3 leaves. Allow the stem to callus and then insert into a free-draining type of potting soil, one comprised of peat moss and perlite is ideal. Begin checking for roots in about a month.

SOCIAL SECURITY MATTERS

Should I put in for Social Security now, or at 70?

By Russell Gloor
Guest columnist

Dear Rusty: I'm currently 67-years-old and still working full time. I took a big financial hit in 2008, which is why I'm still working, and I expect to continue working until I'm 70. My question is: should I take Social Security now, bank it until I'm 70, and then pay it out to myself upon retirement? Or would it be better to hold off until I'm 70 to claim? Longevity of about 85 seems to run in my family. Signed: Working Senior

Dear Working Senior: I'm afraid there's no simple answer to your question, but I'll give you some points to ponder.

If you don't need the money right now, and you expect to enjoy at least average longevity (about 85 for a man your current age), then waiting until you're 70 will give you the maximum monthly benefit and the most in cumulative lifetime Social Security benefits if you meet average longevity. And if you live beyond the average, your cumulative lifetime benefits will be correspondingly more. Since you've already delayed past your full retirement age of 66, you are already earning delayed retirement credits (DRCs) at the rate of 8% for each full year you delay (the maximum Social Security benefit is reached at age 70).

Can you do better than an 8% annual increase by claiming now and saving or investing the money? That would be the main point to evaluate, and only you know your investment options. But you should also consider that if you should die before your wife and she has reached her full retirement age, your wife will get 100% of the benefit you are receiving at your death. If you claim earlier (e.g., now), your wife will get that earlier smaller amount as your widow. Compare that to what she'll get by you waiting until age 70 to claim, when your benefit will be about 24% more than it is now. Again, something for you to consider.

If you claim at age 70 you will have collected about the same amount of money at age 82 as if you had claimed now. That is your "breakeven" point, which is where your expected longevity comes into play. If you think you will beat the average and you do, you'll collect much more in total lifetime Social Security benefits by waiting until you are 70 to claim. Of course, no one knows how long they will live, but if your family history suggests a long life and you're in good health now, delaying is usually a prudent choice. That is, however, a decision only you can make.

District secures funding for food truck

By Dalton Zbierski
Staff Writer

CHICOPEE – Come summer, a city-owned food truck will be available to serve local youths. On March 17, the Chicopee School Committee approved a $130,693 purchase of a food truck for the Food Services Department.

The motion passed through the committee unanimously. Funding for the purchase has been made available by the Food Security Infrastructure Grant, which was awarded to the school district.

“The food truck is a food truck; it’s not going to be another refrigerated box truck. It’s going to be a truck for serving meals out of,” said Melanie Wilk, director of district Food Services. “We will have a griddle on there and warmers. Most of the meals we’ll still prepare in the school kitchens and then pack onto the truck to then take out and serve to the community.”

Superintendent Lynn Clark complimented Wilk and her colleagues for securing the funding, noting that “it was a surprise.”

The truck will be a valuable asset to the school district for field days and field trips, as well as for the city at events such as National Night Out, an annual community initiative that connects residents with local law enforcement personnel, said Wilk.

Wilk and her team applied for the grant in an effort to increase food accessibility for the entire community. Wilk and Farm-to-School Coordinator Greta Schwachman have been discussing the prospects of attaining a food truck for several years.

“We saw this grant and knew the money was available, so we went for it,” said Wilk. “We were shocked and elated that we did get it. It’s definitely about increasing food security across our community.”

Mayor John Vieau credited the department for discovering and capitalizing on the funding opportunity. He also appreciated the fact that the food truck will be used to bring nutritious food to community events.

“Thank you, first of all, for applying for that grant, and secondly, for receiving it,” said Vieau. “We’re excited [about] the food security part for the school district, but your immediate commitment to National Night Out is what I really appreciated when you just shared that with us.”

School committee representatives also expressed enthusiasm regarding the food truck. Ward 9 Representative Mary Beth Costello considers the purchase to be a home run.

“I want to thank Melanie for this approach to address food insecurity in the city of Chicopee. This is a very creative approach and it makes sense,” said Costello. “I can’t thank you enough in a time where food insecurity is a major problem, not only in Chicopee but nationwide, that you have addressed this with creativity.”

At-large representative Doug Girouard praised Wilk for how well she’s followed in the footsteps of her predecessor to the position, Joanne Lennon. He also thanked members of the department for persevering through the COVID-19 pandemic.

“Certainly, your staff and the work you guys are doing over there is tremendous. The kids need this to start their day and try to learn properly, and you’re doing a great job, so keep up the good work. Thank you,” said Girouard.

statement in support of full-time, in-person learning and a social distancing minimum of three feet between mask-wearing students.

Clark said that data collected from Massachusetts school districts, ranging from September through Jan. 27, “shows that there’s no substantial difference in cases among students and staff with three-feet versus six-feet distancing since schools reopened. There have been schools across the state that have been open with three feet; other districts have opened with six feet.”

Clark explained that the district has been committed to six feet of social distancing, but the trend cannot continue due to space available in each school building as they near capacity.

Different grades in the various elementary schools will have different social distancing minimums to follow. The social distancing minimum in one class might be three feet, in another it could be four-and-a-half feet, while in others it could remain at six feet.

Six feet of social distancing will still be required when students are eating. Students of all ages must wear masks, as is now mandated by DESE.

In the fall, a district-wide remote learning option will no longer be required by DESE, which will support a robust summer learning program. Clark has her sights set on the coming months.

“This spring, they’re going to come out with some prom, field trip and graduation guidance. We should get that within the next week,” she said.

Another plant that faced true liberation a month ago was an amaryllis that I received in a fancy clear container. The bulb was waxed, or maybe even covered in some kind of plastic. Hard to tell. All you had to do was put it on the shelf, no potting up required. Something did not set well with me about this fancy new modus...they want you to throw it away afterwards! But I kept my comment to myself, thanked the person who gave it to me and watched as it bloomed, nicely, but on a shorter stem than what I am used to. Once the flowers had passed it looked as though another stem wanted to put out flower buds, but it just sort of sat there. I decided I would operate, gently peeling the wax off the bulb. After planting in potting soil the amaryllis did bloom and has since put out healthy white roots this last month. Next it will grow a healthy crop of foliage then go dormant before blooming again next fall/winter.

It was a lot of fun to repot and experiment with my “houseplants.” Maybe I’ve had some success because not all of them were intentioned for the house all along. Or maybe my luck is changing!

Students and staff members from St. Stanislaus School traveled up Front St. to participate in the ceremony last Friday. Numerous local and state elected officials were also on-hand.

“I’m very proud to be here today to celebrate St. Joseph’s Day with my colleagues from the legislature, Mayor Vieau, members of the City Council and other elected officials. Thank you to all of you St. Stanislaus students for being here today and carrying on this Polish tradition,” said State Rep. Jacob Oliveira of the 7th Hampden District.

Oliveira added that he looked forward to eating, “all of the Polish delicacies.”

Vieau said that he associates his Polish heritage directly with the city of Chicopee. He read a proclamation that credited Polish-Americans for enriching Chicopee’s culture, contributing to facets of life including the sciences, government affairs, business and education.

“We’re all proud Polish people today,” said Vieau, asking residents not to be confused by his French last name. “This is a very important day for me, being of Polish descent. Proudly representing the city of Chicopee as Mayor is something that I could only have dreamed about, but now it’s a reality. I’m very thankful to be here and serve our city, especially through this time of uncertainty.”

Acknowledging the cold temperature that morning, Vieau said he is optimistic that next year the feast day can be celebrated during a ceremony held inside of the newly renovated City Hall Auditorium.

Hampden County Registrar of Deeds Cheryl Coakley-Rivera attended the gathering last Friday. She recalled the Golumpki that her grandmother Helen always made her.

“Without the Polish heritage of Polish-Americans, this country wouldn’t be where it is today,” said Coakley-Rivera. “As we celebrate the Polish heritage and

St. Joseph’s Day, I also would be remiss if we didn’t mention the contributions that you all have made to this great country and this great city from economics to education to politics, sports and it goes on and on.”

Janina Surdyka, Chicopee’s Registrar of Voters, was called upon to raise the Polish flag. Surdyka emigrated from Poland to the United, where she has since become a well-respected employee in the city of Chicopee.

Due to the acts of violence that claimed eight lives in the Atlanta metropolitan area on March 16, President Joe Biden proclaimed that all American flags should be at half-mast; Governor Charlie Baker issued the same proclamation regarding the state flag.

In respect to the victims of the Atlanta shootings, the Polish flag was also raised to half-mast.

The March 19 celebration was broadcast by ChicopeeTV and is available for viewing on its Facebook page.

Also at last Friday’s ceremony were City Councilors George Balakier and Gerry Roy, Deputy Police Chief Lonnie Dakin, State Sen. Adam Gomez of the Hampden District, City Treasurer Marie Laflamme, City Collector Stanley Iwanicki and Appoint Assessor Brian Suchy.

Humans are social beings and Ufeed off of human interaction. When in-person socialization can be brought about safely, the council is all for it, especially if it supports a healthy cause.

The council recently completed its grant season and awarded 52 grants that will be divvied up among public entities and artists. Miranda is ecstatic to witness the aura of creativity that he believes will prevail in Chicopee this summer.

“Grantees have received their reward letters, and we are looking forward to all of the events that they will be producing throughout the year. Some of them will be in person, some will be streamed online,” said Miranda.

In March, the council celebrated Women’s History Month and Irish-Heritage Month. To commemorate Chicopee’s Polish heritage, Miranda interviewed the Chicopee Colleen Court on ChicopeeTV.

The council has developed a fruitful partnership with Chicopee’s public access television studio. On a monthly basis, the council will team up with ChicopeeTV to highlight an interesting facet of the arts in Chicopee.

“We just launched our ChicopeeTV show, called ‘Spotlight on the Arts.’ I’m hosting the show, and every month, we’re going to bring in different artists or different individuals in our community that are of interest to the arts and that relate to the month’s theme,” said Miranda.

To honor Chicopee’s female population, Miranda teamed up with educator and activist Charles Laboy during a month-long vlogging initiative titled ‘100 Flowers for 100 Women.’

Community members nominated different women to be recognized, and footage of Miranda and Laboy’s ventures will be aired on ChicopeeTV on March 29.

“We’ve identified 100 powerful women in Chicopee and we’re going to go, with the sponsorship of the Cultural Council that has been gracious enough to buy the flowers for us, Charles and I are going to go around Chicopee vlogging while we hand out roses to these 100 women,” said Miranda.

Separate from the council, Miranda has launched his own undertaking, ‘La Diaspora.’ He described the space at 234 Exchange St. as offering local artists a platform to create.

“It’s going to be such a fun, collective, maker-space for people to come in and create and use materials to carve wood or play with clay or paint. We’re really looking forward to being able to contribute in that aspect to the revitalization of Chicopee Center,” said Miranda, adding that artists must enroll in a membership plan to access the space.

Chicopee struggles in opener

CHICOPEE – It's not often Palmer meets Chicopee in football, but in the pandemic version of Western Mass. high school football, the two teams meet in the season opener last Saturday afternoon. Offense was at a premium for three quarters until Palmer scored three times in the fourth quarter for a 32-0 shut-out. Jack Letendre passed for 52 yards and ran for 45. Jacob Mastalerz ran 19 times for 84 yards while Xavier Nava went for 80 yards on 14 carries. While Letendre had three interceptions, Chicopee was unable to do anything with it. Steven Matta had 32 yards receiving while Chicopee's rushing attack could not mount any significant yardage.

Valley Wheel Baseball is ready to get started again. Tryouts were held last summer before the season ultimately had to be cancelled due to the pandemic.

REGION – The regular season is just a month away and the members of the Valley Wheel Over-30 Baseball League are excited to be playing baseball again.

Last year, the season was cancelled once parks were closed due to the coronavirus pandemic.

An attempt was made by commissioner Jim Nason to hold a short season once modified rules for activity were allowed, but there was not enough interest to keep the league operating.

Now, the league is gearing for a full season, but between circumstances changing during the pandemic and the modifications currently in place for sports The league is definitely in need of more baseball talent.

Nason is hoping "quarantine fatigue" and the need to get outdoors and get active will draw new players to tryouts when they start next weekend.

Tryouts for the league will take place Saturday, April 3, and firsthand the value of an extra dollar. We've put together a competitive structure that rewards everyone who shows up and will help teams get their cars to the track."

field. The presidents have also approved the continuation of practice for fall and winter MASCAC teams subject to health and safety, testing and tracing protocols in place to limit the spread of the COVID-19 virus.

"The MASCAC continues to meet regularly with the presidents, athletic directors, athletic trainers and other essential staff as we bring our student-athletes back to the playing field, safely, while adhering to all state, federal and NCAA guidelines," said MASCAC Commissioner Angela the next two Sundays, April 11 and 18. There are normally six teams in the league and the hope is to continue to have that tradition as players begin to make their way out to the fields. The normal Valley Wheel season is 15 games beginning April 25 this year and going until the end of July. The league plays nine-inning games, allowing all participants an opportunity to get plenty of at-bats and lots of time in the field.

The top four teams in the league make the playoffs and the semifinals and finals are held in the first two weeks of August. The schedule also features a couple of weeknights games and a special Mother's Day weekend Saturday game.

when possible, and no spitting among the habit baseball players are not allowed to engage in. While the game play is largely the same, the mask-wearing rule was one that was the subject of controversy last summer and ultimately led to the cancellation of the shortened season.

With vaccinations in Massachusetts clearing one million people and the state entering Phase 4 of the re-opening plan earlier this week, Nason is hopeful the restrictions will ease as the season goes on, especially as it relates to gathering.

Comradery is one of the staples of the league, which has usually included tailgating after games. That is a practice that will also have to be on hold until restrictions lift.

For more information on getting involved in adult baseball, go to www.valleywheelbaseball.com. To play in the league, you must be 28-years-old before June 1. In order to participate in the league as a pitcher, you must be 30-years-old before June 1. Players can participate in at least one of the three tryouts dates, usually held at Blunt Park, and then a draft is held prior to the start of the season.

Baumann. "It is our intention to have these athletic events as long as the conditions allow us to move forward safely. The MASCAC office and eight MASCAC Presidents will be monitoring practices and competition to ensure the continued health and safety of our student-athletes and staff."

It will remain the decision of each member institution to determine if they can safely participate in intercollegiate athletics this spring and in which sports they will permit competition. These decisions will be made in consultation with campus health professionals and the MASCAC Commissioner.

The presidents have approved a conference schedule where the institutions will play the same school each week in baseball, softball and women's lacrosse. In addition, the membership has approved a men's golf and outdoor track and field championship. Additionally, the presidents have authorized institutions to schedule non-conference contests, provided all non-conference teams follow prescribed MASCAC health and safety guidance and protocols. Institutions will not be traveling to compete against teams out of state.

As the MASCAC teams continue to participate in athletic activities, it is the continued responsibility of all student-athletes and staff to stay diligent in their safety

$2.5 million and 58 river restoration projects have improved health of Connecticut River

REGION – The Connecticut River Conservancy on March 19 announced the completion of five years of work to improve the health of the Connecticut River and the Long Island Sound.

This work was possible in large part due to federal funding from the USDA's Regional Conservation Partnership Program through a grant to the Connecticut Council on Soil and Water Conservation, aimed at reducing pollution in the Connecticut River and Long Island Sound. The Connecticut River contributes over 70% of the freshwater to Long Island Sound and plays an important role in the health of the Sound.

CRC completed 58 river restoration projects covering more than 180 miles and 60 acres in New Hampshire, Vermont, and Massachusetts. These projects help reduce erosion, runoff, and excess nitrogen, which causes low dissolved oxygen levels that threaten fish and other aquatic organisms. Projects included planting trees and shrubs along rivers on agricultural lands to slow runoff and filter pollutants from water before it enters rivers, berm and dam removals that restore natural river flows and decrease erosion during floods, and streambank stabilization work that helps keep soil in place rather than polluting rivers.

"We are very pleased to have been able to complete this many restoration projects in our local communities to improve the health of both the Connecticut River basin and Long Island Sound," said CRC Executive Director Andrew Fisk. "While this grant program may be over, CRC will continue to work with landowners on restoration projects on their land that will improve our rivers and protect their investment in productive farm and forest land."

"We applaud the efforts of CRC and the local landowners who partnered to implement conservation projects that will protect and improve water quality and instream habitat for many generations to come," said Vicky Drew, Vermont State Conservationist for the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS).

The federal funding, which CRC matched dollar for dollar with other grants and private donations, was used to complete engineering designs, restoration plans, and permitting necessary for project implementation. CRC worked over the five-year grant period to help local landowners sign up for USDA NRCS programs that helped fund implementation of the restoration projects. CRC was able to secure additional grant funds (used as match) to help reduce or eliminate landowner out of pocket expenses. In all, more than $2.5 million was invested over the five years in these 58 river restoration projects and supported many local businesses including engineering firms, construction companies, nurseries, and more.

"Through RCPP, NRCS co-invests with partners like the Connecticut River Conservancy to implement projects that offer innovative solutions to conservation challenges and provide measurable improvements tied to the natural resource concerns they address," said Dan Wright, Massachusetts State Conservationist for NRCS. "Through their contributions, our partners add value by expanding our ability to address natural resource concerns on farm-by-farm, watershed, and regional levels."

"NRCS is very pleased to have a partner such as CRC and the numerous landowners involved to complete 58 projects over the last five years that will have a lasting impact on the water quality of the Connecticut River basin and Long Island Sound," said New Hampshire NRCS State Conservationist Becky Ross. "With CRC's partnership, we were able to have a much larger impact in a shorter amount of time."
